Key features include: Find files with a specific name or contents Find files with the same size, date, or type Search for more than one file at a time Find duplicates from the selected folder, or from a set of folders Simple setup, simple deployment, simple operation, cannot stress "simple" enough Thanks to a very minimalist and accessible initialization, we could consider this app to be ideal for novice users and those who hate to spend too much time with setup processes and special steps. Once enabled, the app can accept folders to be scanned for duplicates by either drag-and-drop or internal selection, thus achieving the best of both worlds and offering users a handling choice. Lack of more advanced features might put-off more demanding users, but this does not impede flawless functionality During our tests we haven't experienced any lags and the scanning operation was always prompt and accompanied by a nice graphical progress visualization. Each time, the files were identified swiftly and thanks to a minimalist classification based on file type users will be able to quickly identify the "culprits". Indeed, more advanced features, such as those for adding search filters could be craved by more experienced users, but considering what a good job the app manages to do in terms of finding the dupes, this could be seen as a minor improvement idea. I will just ask the developer to change the links in their description (I will ask to do this before tomorrow, once I've found the application in AppShopper). Thanks. @zephoric Thank you for replying to my comment. I see that you also mentioned the latest version of the Duplicate Finder as being updated as well. I might keep that in mind, so that I can give a high rating if the changes actually work well. @RichardA Actually I did get an update for the app today, so I checked it. The update hasn't changed the system's scanning capabilities, but it did modify the app's icons, among other things. However, I haven't noticed any changes in functionality. @sabar197 Great to see that the link still works! I'm actually not sure about how to report problems with the review link - my guess would be that the link is linked to a website that's no longer in use, so perhaps it's best to contact the developer directly, as I did: If the link does break down in the future, I'll let you know. @juba701 I've sent a message to the developer and will let you know once it's resolved. @Bubbligum Thank you for taking the time to reply. I don't have any technical experience with the application, but I do try to get myself in touch with developers who are keen to help users in this way. I
